1,000 Korea Veterans to Hold Third Reunion Here Saturday

Veterans of Korea will have a reunion here next Saturday. The United States Armed Forces in Korea Association is the sponsor. The reunion, its third, will be held at the National Guard Armory and feature a dinner, entertainment and dancing. More than 1,000 association members are expected.

There's also a serious purpose—raising money for a scholarship fund honoring missing Maj. Gen. William F. Dean. Gen. Dean, commander of the Army's Twenty-fourth Division, disappeared in battle July 25, 1950. The fund will educate children of American dead in the Korean war and qualified Korean nationals. At least 2,000 present and former members of the armed forces who served in Korea since 1945 have been counted in the Washington area alone, according to Lt. Col. Samuel A. Smith (ret.), secretary general of the association. But many of those attending the reunion will come from distant points. Among those expected are Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, Korean occupation commander after World War II, and Maj. Gen. John H. Church, who took over leadership of the Twenty-fourth Division after Gen. Dean's disappearance. In addition to pushing the scholarship fund, the association plans to begin developing a closer-knit organization than it has had up to now, Col. Smith said. A charter will be obtained soon, he added. To Open With Dinner. Saturday's reunion will open with a cocktail party and dinner, from 5 to 8:30 p.m., for association members, relatives and friends. Any one who has served in Korea—in civilian or military status—is eligible for reservations, which can be obtained from Col. Smith, 214 North Wayne street, Arlington. Charge will be $6.40 per person. The public will be admitted after 8:30 for the dance and show, featuring John Long's orchestra and Sam Levenson, radio comedian. A Korean-American dancer and singer in costume also will entertain. Tickets for the dance are $2.40. They are available at the Statler, Willard and National Symphony ticket offices.

Dorothy Peters Joins Staff of Urban League

Miss Dorothy M. Peters, Red Cross and social worker, has been named to the staff of the Washington Urban League.

A specialist in community organizations, Miss Peters is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University and has done graduate work at Washington University and the National Catholic School of Social Science at Catholic University. During seven years with the Red Cross, she served as general service case worker, in the military hospital service and in the personnel service of the National Red Cross Headquarters here. While attending Catholic University, she was director of social welfare at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

The Urban League is an organization devoted to improving the economic status of Negroes.
